

WOMEN'S NETWORKING GROUP Invites New Members

In 1987, local woman business leader Muffett Callender founded the Rancho Santa Fe Business and Professional Women's Association to create a support system for other professional women who lived in the village of Rancho Santa Fe.

Today, by expanding its boundaries, the group has evolved to become even more diverse, with membership comprised of women who live and/or work throughout North County

San Diego. While the network has expanded, the group's original focus remains the same—to encourage, support and motivate members both professionally and personally while having fun in the process.

The Rancho Santa Fe Business and Professional Women's Association offers monthly networking meetings. They are normally held the third Thursday of each month at Rancho Santa Fe Golf Club, near the village of Rancho Santa Fe. However, the meetings will be held via Zoom until the Club reopens. These meetings offer wide-ranging programs that cover topics such as Personal Safety Tips for Women, How To Organize Your New Business, Building Self-esteem, and more.

This month's July 16 meeting will be virtual unless otherwise noted due to the Rancho Santa Fe Golf Club meeting space experiencing a temporary closure.

The Association is currently holding a membership drive to attract more passionate female entrepreneurs to the group.

Rancho Santa Fe Golf Club is located at 5827 Via de la Cumbre in Rancho Santa Fe. For more information visit RanchoSantaFeBizProWomen.com.
